

I am opposed to allowing BPL. I believe that it will have unintended side effects in the areas of interference, but also competition. The interference factor could and I believe is especially high on this technology; furthermore, it will become especially hard for home consumer to eradicate this "noise" from their power lines, not to mention the fact that this noise could generate harmonics that will be utterly impossibly to remove.